Gesler arrested him on the spot, being marshal of the village as well as tyrant, thus drawing a salary from two offices, contrary to the constitution. Gesler, as a punishment for his audacity, ordered him to shoot an apple off the head of his boy. This he did, although it was an arrow escape for the young Tell. The apple fell, pierced to the core, no encore being allowed owing to the extreme length of the performance. As Tell rushed forward to embrace his boy another arrow dropped out of his vest. "Hal" cried the tyrant, "Wherefore concealest that arrow?" How did Love wake? The early beams Had piecred the roseless where he slept, And rising from his primurd dreams, Into the dewy world he lest, Singing—soared upward into light— "For day is but a little pain. And then 'tis night with solt delight

So Love returned when twilight fell,
And found his flowers, dying, dead;
The queenly rose he loved so well
Lay in his arms with drooping head;
"Ah, love!" she cried, "thy kines burn;
But Death has chilled my lips before.
If Love once fles, he may r turn;

course, doesn't get the pebble out of her shoe, but gets several more in to keep it from getting lonesome. Then the screamer tiptoes down to the place and says, "What a fool I was!" The other comes down, having secured a new invoice of pebbles in transit, and screams, "What is it?" As it is nothing but a devil's apron-string, and not a snake, the screamer again says, "What a fool!" They then laugh. But they keep their eyes about them, and each mouth is always ready to emit a scream. By this time they reach the water's edge. A puny roller is advancing. It breaks a little way out, and as the line of foam is sent up from the beach they turn and scamper with all their might. Then one says, "What a fool!" And the other replies, "I know it!" Then they take hold of hands determined to do or die. Another wave makes- them flinch and tremble and scream justa little, but they keep on till the water reaches to what would be their knees if they were men. New they face each other, each holding he two hands of the other. At 11 her heart beat but twenty-six a minute, and her respirations were hardly noticeable. Her friends here urged her to discontinue her terrible task, and told her some gossip about a neighbor. On hearing it she immediately rushed from the house and going across the street met a lady friend and talked to 6:30 last night, and is now fully restored. Her record of nearly two hours and a quarter of absolute silence now takes its place at the top of the list. Congratulatory letters are pouring in from all sides, and she has had several offers to take the lecture field. knees it they were men. They keep this up for five or ten minutes, talking like abrace of parrots all the time, till one of them screams with all her might and runs half way to the bath house. She stops to remark that she knows she will die, and looking down sees the cause of her scale—a blade of eelgrass tightly wound about her ankle. Spunking up courage again, they seek the water once more, and again the handengine maneuvre is repeated. Then one of them whispers, 'There's a man!' And the other says, 'I don't care one bit,' and runs with all her might to the bath-house. Then the one who has seen the man ean-

AN OPEN SECRET AMONG THE LADIES

The brilliant, fascinating tints of Complexion for which ladles strive are chiefly arti-ficial, and all who will take the trouble may secure them. These roseate, bewitching hues follow the use of Hagan's Magnolio Balm—a delicate, harm-less and always reliable article, Sold by all druggists, The Magnolia Balm conceals every blemish, removes Sal-lowness, Tan, Redness, Erup-tions, all evidences of excite-ment and every innerfection.

ment and every imperfection. Its effects are immediate and so natural that no human being can detect its application.
